Acting Locally and Delivering Globally

The company delivers support to local, UK and worldwide markets, whilst our island location gives us a unique perspective on local and community issues, which has proven invaluable wherever we work. Our national portfolio of experience around Scotland and the UK, including a number of country wide projects, provides a strategic level perspective to complement our local roots. The company currently works with a team of around 40 staff and associates. We also have a dedicated group of delivery partners that we regularly collaborate with.

This support has been applied to all stages of the development planning process and many different commercial and other activities. The scale of projects undertaken varies considerably from household levels and individual technology investors, to leading major global development and infrastructure projects and multinational energy companies. We have a particularly strong track record in the renewables and oil and gas energy sectors.

Our work has taken us into many different types of environment, from deserts to upland bogs, from maritime heath to woodlands and from cultivated farmland to urban brownfield sites. We also have experience of a wide range of technologies, management strategies and stakeholder engagement approaches. The breadth of this experience means that we are often able to act and advise based upon experience rather than just theory, a further key factor in Aquatera’s success in supporting its clients.

Our flexibility enables us to deliver a wide range of quality services targeting each individual client’s needs. This has been a key factor in the enduring relationships that we establish with many of our clients.

In simple terms our success is founded upon our clients success.
